- 1 Park on the roadside on the opposite side of the river from Evesham Rowing Club. Use path to enter riverside park area. Facing river you will head left/downstream, launching from the concrete jetty.
- 2 After 1 mile arrive at Hampton Ferry. This is a hand controlled ferry, if in use there will be a rope across the width of the river at a height of 1m.

- 3 On the right is Raphaels Restaurant which serves food and drink between 9.00am and 4.00pm daily.
- 4 At just over 2.5 miles arrive at Chadbury lock/weir. There is a portage point to the right hand side of the lock island or a weir shoot.
- 5 At 5 miles Fladbury Paddle Club is on the right immediately after passing under a railway bridge. A good place to stop and there is a toilet at the top of the steps.
- 6 500m downstream of the Paddle Club is Fladbury lock/weir. The Lock can be portaged on the left hand side. To shoot the weir stay right of the lock, and past the mill house on the left. There is a ferry wire at 1m to avoid and the weir shoot is best on the left.
- 7 At 9.5 mile you pass the Anchor Inn at Wyre Piddle on the right and then stay left for a lock/portage or continue right for a weir shoot. This weir needs a good inspection before shooting.
- 8 A further mile downstream you reach your destination at Pershore and can get out at King George V Playing Field on the right.

The trail commences at Evesham which is the starting point for the Lower Avon. The River Avon is made up of the Upper Avon which runs from Alveston weir above Stratford-upon-Avon to Evesham, and the Lower Avon from Evesham to Tewkesbury where it joins the River Severn.

The rural Vale of Evesham is bordered by the Cotswolds to the East and Bredon and Malvern Hills to the South and West. The Vale is famous for its fruit orchards, market gardeners and food production.

The get in at Evesham is opposite the recently restored historical Bell Tower. The Bell Tower, 2 churches and the Almonry, now a museum, are all that remain of what was once the 3rd largest Abbey in England, dating back to 700AD.

After circling Evesham you pass under a railway bridge which carries the main Birmingham Paddington line and then paddle in to the heart of the Vale passing Sankey Marine on your right before arriving at Chadbury Lock and Weir (For fans of Top Gear, this is the weir they went over in their Ford Transit hovercraft)

Depending on the time of year you may see Wood Norton Hall on your right through the trees. This until recently was the BBC Engineering training Centre and supposedly Winston Churchill made war time broadcasts from an underground bunker here during the 2nd world war.

Fladbury Paddle Club is a sprint/marathon racing club well known for producing a number of International paddlers over the years and more recently the home of Bell Boating. If you fancy a wander into the village there are 2 pubs and the award winning Fladbury Pie shop.

Crothorne Mill is used as a holiday home, but if there are people there it is worth asking them to see the collection of old canoes and coracles.

Like Evesham, Pershore has an historic Abbey and is also famous for the High Street and its Georgian architecture. There are also a number of small cafes in the town.
